Saban Entertainment Group entered into a development deal with Singapore based Tiny Island Productions

C21 MEDIA, 7th October 2006 - In creating Saban Entertainment Group, Saban and Andryc have also teamed up with Tiny Island Animation, a Singapore-based animation studio led by David Kwok, a veteran leader of the Singapore animation industry.

Saban Entertainment Group will provide development resources to Tiny Island, which focuses on producing CGI entertainment for international television audiences. A comedic CGI animated series is currently in development and is expected to make its debut in 2007.

Explaining the launch of Saban Entertainment Group, Andryc said: "In today's new media environment, we plan to capitalise on cutting-edge interactive technologies to engage the youth market. Our audience will discover and experience unique characters and story content through the media outlet they prefer, be it broadcast, cable, VoD, broadband/internet, direct-to-home-video, videogames or mobile devices."

The new venture will focus on identifying and creating unique, original intellectual properties and brands capable of being distributed across numerous multi-media platforms and connecting with audiences across a variety of entertainment genres, with a particular focus on new media.
